Track Limits

Drivers are required to keep the car within the white lines that delimit the track. Failure to comply with this rule will result in a penalty as follows:

Free Practice and Qualifying:

For each infringement of the track limits, the time of the lap concerned will be cancelled.

In case of abuse of track limits, the competitor can be further penalized by the stewards with a penalty up to disqualification.

Race:

At the third infraction the black / white flag will be shown.

On the fourth offense: 5-second penalty added to the total race time.

From the fifth offence: penalty at the discretion of the Stewards, up to disqualification.

If an overtaking maneuver is made abusing the track limits this will be penalized at the discretion of the Stewards, even if it is the first offence of this kind.

For the entire Event a Track Limit infraction will be considered only when a car goes with all four tires beyond the kerb.

Starting procedure: ROLLING START

The cars will be divided in two groups.

10' (ten minutes) before the announced time for the start: the cars will leave the pit area and make a lap of the circuit, line up their cars on the grid in their assigned place and turn off the engine; from this moment until the 5' panel is displayed, works are allowed on cars.

5' (five minutes) before the announced start time: the pit exit will be closed; any car still in the pit area will only be able to start after the whole group has passed in front of the pit exit during the first lap of the race.

Panel 3': working on the car is no longer allowed. All people, except drivers, race officials and team members operating the external power source and tire warmers, must clear the track.

Panel 1': tire warmers must be removed immediately.

15" panel: Engines on. All mechanics on the grid must stay on the white line.

After the presentation of this panel, a green flag will be waved in front of the grid to indicate that the cars from the first group must proceed and start a complete lap of the circuit, maintaining their respective positions in the formation; the driver occupying the "pole-position" must align his pace with that held by the "Leading Car" by maintaining a distance of no more than twenty meters from it.

After 10 seconds the second group will be allowed to start the formation lap behind another leading car.

During this lap it is forbidden to overtake another car, to carry out starting practice and the cars' formation must be as tight as possible.

Any driver who is unable to start his car will immediately signal it by raising his arm, as soon as all the other cars have left the grid, the mechanics, under the direct supervision of the Race Officials, will have to push the car to the pits. Should the car be able to restart during this operation, the driver will be able to resume his formation lap and, if he reaches the main line-up, he will keep in last position without overtaking any car.

If a driver has difficulty leaving his position on the starting grid when the green flag is shown for the start of the starting lap, he will be able to resume his position on the grid, before the start of the race, if he is not overtaken by all the cars that started for the formation lap.

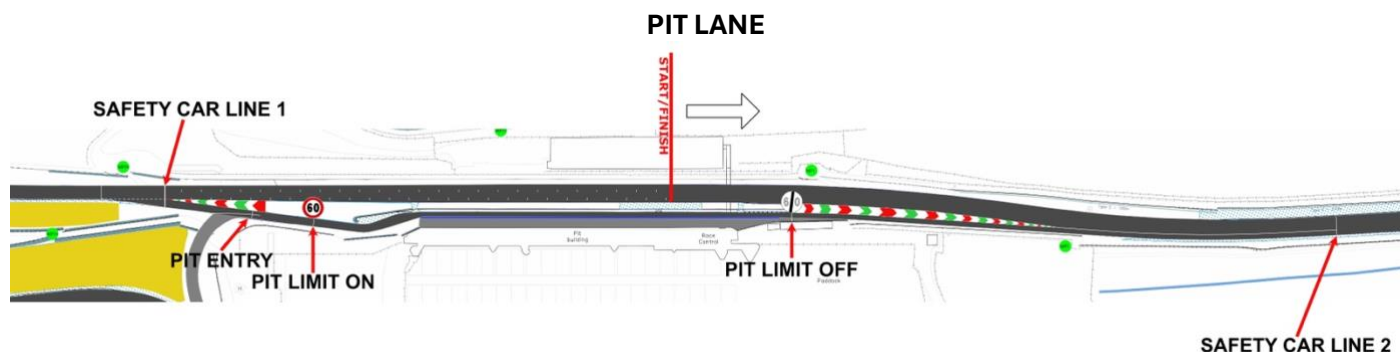

Otherwise, if all the cars on the grid overtake the slow car at the green flag for the formation lap, the driver who is lagging behind will not be able to resume his grid position and will have to line up in last position.

At the T13-T14 corner, GRID signs will be displayed, this is the signal that the cars will have to start lining up on the two rows. At the end of the lap, the Leading Car will enter the Pit Lane and the cars will proceed divided into 2 lines at a constant speed. When the red lights will be extinguished the race will be deemed as started.
